Alfa Romeo's Giulietta is now well into its production run and I still think it is a fantastic car, its dynamic ability is stunning and I always enjoy the driving experience. The choice of engines is not as large as it could be and I do feel that the chassis could handle some more power easily and not get itself tied up in knots like the 147 GTA did (much as I love my 147 it is a bit mad).

The 1300 engine is a classic Alfa Romeo twin cam with the camshats placed directly on top of the valves. The valves have a 90 degree included angle on both the Giulietta and Giulia engines. Carburation is by twin side draught carburetors these are fed by an electric fuel pump rather than the engine driven pump usually found on these engines.
